COVER PHOTOGRAPH By TOM STEVENS

The front cover photograph was shot at the 1995-96 Clan Gathering. The entire student body is represented in the photograph. The photo was taken from the top of Read Acres.

The photo montage on the back of the cover was compiled from a series of photographs taken by Mr. Stevens, Mrs. MacLellan, Fiona Bruce and friends of the Slogan.

- 1. How many years have you been at Branksome? Two years, this is my third.
- 2. What do you find to be the most enjoyable aspect of Branksome?

The students, Canadian students are great!

- 3. Explain your most embarrassing moment. Not fit for print.
- 4. State the colour of your toothbrush. Red and blue
- 5. Explain your biggest accomplishment. Getting into Oxford University.
- 6. What is your favourite T.V. show and/or novel? Murder One.
- 7. What has been your happiest moment here at Branksome?

Too many happy moments to single out any one of them!

- 8. What position do you hold in your family? ie: eldest, middle, youngest or only? Eldest.
- 9. What is your favourite food served at the cafeteria? Humus on pita bread with alfalfa sprouts.
- 10. Do you have any plans for the future? Survival.
- 11. Do you have anything to share or words of wisdom you would like to share with the student body? Never look back.

As with all institutions, it is the people who use them who breathe life into them and make them what they really are. Without teachers, students, and staff, Branksome is merely bricks and mortar. Branksome only comes alive through the presence of its community:

- girls in kilts, carrying enormous numbers of books in large back packs, looking somewhat like giant Scottish turtles hurrying to classes or to the (Caf);
- teachers with huge yearly planners rushing to classes or to coffee;
- locker rooms full of the sounds of laughter and chatter.

Branksome is: bustle, energy and organized chaos. It's the warmth of smiles exchanged as you pass people in the halls. It is the wonderful friends you make. It's the way students find the courage and conviction to stand up for their beliefs.

Branksome is: "Spirit Week" in which all grades go wild with enthusiasm. It is the excitement of a school production on opening night and getting swept up in special events like "Grease week". It is the special teacher whose classes you can't wait to attend and it's the delight of coming each morning to a place which welcomes you.

Branksome is. Common room discussion, especially the saga of the Formal which usually takes place over a four month period — three months before and one after the actual event. Branksome is: tradition;

- the Carol Service, each Christmas, where alumni, students, parents and friends gather to celebrate together,
- the installation ceremony with its colours, flags and traditions which celebrates the role student leaders play in the school and recognizes the graduating class;
- skits in which we make fun of ourselves and each other;
- our clans, which give the school its spirit; and
- our clubs, which in their diversity cater to every possible interest.

Branksome is: the "Resident Experience" — the fun of living and working together, or of trying to talk on the phone in a hall where a serious game of softball is being played at the same time as indoor toboggan races are taking place. It is the delight of seeing boarders from warmer climes as they first discover snow.

Branksome is: hard work, stress and sometimes even tears. It is the thrill of working together as a team on the volleyball court, or rowing early in the morning on Lake Ontario, and of being a member of the loudest, most spirited ice hockey team, despite a five year no-win record.

I realize how privileged I am to have come to Branksome. I believe that we are all fortunate to be here, learning in such a comfortable and caring environment.

Branksome KEEP WELL THE ROAD. Live every day to the fullest. Remember to stop often and enjoy the experience and always carry with you, your dreams and visions of the future, and the many memories you have of the past.

Branksome, For all you have given me,

Thank you

Megan Hewings

A MY

CLANS

Clans are a huge part of Branksome. Of course, they mean different things to different people. To me, Clans are a way to have fun-packed homerooms and a means to encourage people to meet and know other students through participation in crazy games. Clans give people the opportunity to mix with students from other grades and create school-wide spirit. They are a great asset because they teach people how to have fun in competitive situations. What would Branksome be without Clans?

Clan spirit has been really high this year. Almost everyone participated. I hope you enjoyed all your clan activities, from the Clan Gathering to those wacky homerooms where your fearless leaders came up with some cool things to do.

I must thank the people who made it all happen: the Chieftains, Sarah, Streis, Sarah, Betsy, Katie, Vern, Jane and Hill. You were all absolutely marvelous. My Middle Division clan reps were outstanding. They taught the Middle Division how much fun it was to have spirit. I must also thank Mrs. Smith for all her help and advice in organizing lots of marvelous events. It is these people who make clans so important and exciting at Branksome. I want to thank everyone for coming out to all the events. I don't know what we would have done without you.

Adios, Amy Ingram

- 1. How many years have you been at Branksome? Nineteen
- 2. What do you find to be the most enjoyable aspect of Branksome?

Working with the students in and out of the classroom. Branksome students have vital and exciting ideas.

- 3. Explain your most embarrassing moment. I can't think of any specific moment but there have been many.
- 4. State the colour of your toothbrush.
- 5. Explain your biggest accomplishment. My children
- 6. What is your favourite T.V. show and/or novel? I don't have much opportunity to watch T.V. but I love sports, C.B.C. sports etc... My favorite novel is Dr. Zhivago.
- 7. What has been your happiest moment here at Branksome? There have been too many to be specific.
- 8. What position do you hold in your family? ie: eldest, middle, youngest or only.
- 9. What is your favourite food served at the cafeteria?

French fries

- 10. Do you have any plans for the future? Not specifically.
- 11. Do you have any advice or words of wisdom you would like to share with the student body? Take advantage of all the opportunities Branksome has to offer in and out of the classroom.

Work for this year's edition of the SLOGAN started in April 1995. We had not even received SLOGAN 95 and were already working towards SLOGAN 96! Choosing a theme is one of the most difficult choices to make. At Branksome we have students from JK to GY and we must have a theme suitable for our entire audience. In previous years the themes have been very graphics oriented. This year instead of repeating the same frog or picture we decided to take a new and fresh approach. The theme for SLOGAN 96 is by no means a graphical or cartoon theme. (For those of you who haven't picked up on it yet this year's theme is "Magazine" a layout theme.) This theme has given the Slogan staff a chance to test their artistic and creative ability. (Look at the Senior School homeroom pages: they were all done on the computer!) This year some other changes have been made to make the yearbook better for you. We have added an autograph supplement to the back of the book for your friends to sign in and we have increased the number of pages again. There are more Clubs and Society pages than last year and there are more pages in the Middle School section. I hope that you enjoy SLOGAN 96.

Darci MacPhee, Patricia Hung, Nancy Wilson, Lindsay Hastings, Fiona Wong, Stacy Bullock, Angela Tong, Winnie Poon.

ALICE

Is it possible to find a word that embodies the Slogan Staff? Is there a word that signifies: hard work, physical labour, procrastination and frustration? There isn't one. The whole student body owes their soul to all the Slogan staffers that worked beyond the first work Sunday. All those who were dedicated to this yearbook are in my mind superhuman and are capable of freeing the world of all evil if need be. Yearbook staff members have always pulled through in times of crisis (friendly and able staff, no film in camera, the noncommittal grunt, well the list is endless) Thank you so much for all the effort put into this year's book. Here are some of the most common sayings heard at a yearbook meeting:

"Deadline? What are you talking about?"

"Well if you don't have the film, who does?"

"Where is the pizza guy?"

"Nancy don't push the couch."

THE DIRECTOR OF RESIDENCE!

Q: How many years have you been at Branksome?

A: I have been at Branksome since 1974. I was a teacher and the head of the Family Studies Department, Then, I became the Director of Residence.

Q: What do you find to be the most enjoyable aspect of Branksome?

A: I enjoy working in the Branksome atmosphere. The part that I find especially enjoyable is working with the student body, parents and colleagues.

Q: Can you explain your biggest accomplishment, please?

A: My biggest accomplishment at Branksome was becoming the Director of Residence. I graduated from the University of Toronto majoring in Home Economics. My knowledge in nutrition and parenting eventually led me to the position of the Director of Residence.

Q: What do you enjoy the most about doing this job?

A: I enjoy helping students solve their problems and the bonding with students.

Q: I understand that recently you have also become a house don. What difference do you find being a house don and the Director of Residence?

A: There is really not much difference except being a house don I actually live with the boarders and it changed my life-style in a way. Also, being the Director of Residence, I definitely have more responsibilities than just being the house don.

Q: What has been your happiest moment at Branksome?

A: My happiest moment at Branksome would be every time I see a student with difficulties overcome the problem and achieve success. For example, seeing a foreign student, who can hardly speak English at the beginning, converse in English like others at the end of the year.

Q: Do you have any plans for the future?

A: In the future, I would like to do more traveling since I love traveling. I would also like to do more volunteer work.

RESIDENCE PREFECT

I never guessed before these last two years that moving to another country to live in one house with thirty perfect strangers — all girls — could be so much fun. After no time at all these strangers became family, and this house a home. It is hard to explain how wicked residence is in so short a space, the list of good points never ends. This year has been very exciting, especially with the new five-day boarder program. I've gotten to know a lot of new faces and each day has been a challenge as well as a pleasure.

I'll never forget the times I've had here. Residence is like one big slumber party every night, and even though this may sound like a nightmare for some, it is a fantastic dream. There is always someone around to talk to and answer homework problems for you, as well as the closest and most trusted friends you will ever meet in your life. I feel lucky to have been able to experience these last two years, I know they will always remain in my heart.

Thanks to Miss Northgrave, Miss Krey, Miss Viner, Mrs. Smith, the prefects, and the whole Residence Council for helping to make this year so exciting. Good luck to all Branksome girls, I'll miss you all. Much respect to the residence posse and all day girl/boarder exchangers, thanks for such an amazing time.

> Love. Robin.

Are you fit to live in residence?

*() score for each choice is in the bracket at the end.

for the longest time, what would you do?

- a. You would phone a classmate and ask about it(3)
- b. You would sit there and stress yourself 'cos you can't bother to ask anybody.(5)
- c. You wouldn't ask anybody, you just quit.(1)
- If your alarm clock goes off in the morning,
 You would turn off the alarm clock and go back to sleep until someone(like your mother)wakes you up.(5)

- b. You would tell yourself that you would get up in 5 min. (3)
- c. You would get up immediately. (1)
- Suppose you share your room with your brother or sister but your sister or brother wanted to listen to pop music while you feel like jazz music, you would
 - a. insist on your own music until he/she gives in. (5)
 - b. listen to the music anyways. (1)
 - c. compromise with him/her that after awhile you would listen to your music. (3)
- 4. After a swimming class, when you are changing, do you
 - a. change openly without feeling shy. (5)
 - b. go change in the bathroom with the door tightly locked. (1)
 - c. change carefully with a towel covering half your body. (3)
- 5. You are in camp for a month, you would
 - a. miss home so much that you call home twice a day. (1)
 - b. miss home but would call home only once a day. (3)
 - c. call home once a week but call your boyfriend everyday. (5)

Interpretation

-If you score 20-25 on the quiz, you are highly suitable to live in residence. You are considerate, you can share things and understand others. You are also independent. You should definitely join the boarders and have fun!

-If you score 15-19, you are quite suitable to live in residence. Sometimes you would want help from others but too lazy to act upon it. You are quite independent but living in residence would improve your independence further. You should consider involving in boarder-day girl exchange.

-If you score 5-14, you are not suitable to live in residence at all. You don't want help from others, you don't like sharing with others, and you are quite dependent on your parents. You would probably be very homesick if you live in residence.

INTERVIEWS

reported by Meaghan Ursell weekly columnist

Mrs. Penny's cheery smile is not a stranger in the halls of the Junior School. You can often see her teaching a class or stopping to say hello to the students. Her enthusiasm for Branksome is obvious to those around her.

As Head of the Junior School for the past five years, Mrs. Penny has overseen many changes, such as an increased number of primary and junior classes, new lunch and safety routines, and the reorganization of the Junior School.

"I think the Junior School has changed for the better," says Mrs. Penny. "It's just the right size." She especially likes the fact that there are two classes at each grade. "It's wonderful! It's a lot more fun and the teachers have partners."

It has not been without challenges, though. One of the most important parts of Mrs. Penny's job is to keep the curriculum modern "so that it is challenging for all children." She also likes to help out other teachers whenever possible.

With all Mrs. Penny's experience, her advice to all Branksome students is, "Don't be afraid to try something new."

reported by Elizabeth Andrews
weekly columnist

E-00 BRODGH

I asked Miss Brough, Director of Students in the Junior School, if she thought that everyone had handled all this year's changes well. Her response was, "Yes, anything new, through time you get used to. When asked if she missed having the grades seven and eight in the Junior School, she replied, "At the beginning of the year, yes, but now I feel that the grade six students have proved themselves capable of being the senior grade. As the year has progressed, the grade sixes have become more relaxed in their role as leaders.' When I asked her about having clan leaders instead of chieftains, she gave me an immediate answer. "It fits the climate of giving grade six students the opportunity to show their potential as leaders."

On changes for next year, Miss Brough decided that she would like to spend more time with the grade sixes. She explained that it was her favorite part of this year along with organizing school life and clan events.

Miss Brough has been at Branksome for about thirty years and knows what you need to succeed. When asked what advice she would give today's student she replied, "Work hard, be happy, complete your education and above all, have a good sense of humor."

CHRISTIE, JR. SCHOOL PREFECT

To all my Junior School friends, big hugs and thanks for the best year ever! I'll never forget your happy faces and welcoming greetings.

This year, the Junior School has been more fun than ever. The West Side has been crazy with enthusiasm and spirit since the very first day of school! We've had pep rallies, talent shows, contests, Big/Little Sister and Winter Olympics.

The Spooky Halloween

It was Halloween night. And in the air there was a chilling wind. And at the top of a hill there was an old empty house. It was Claire's 12th Halloween. She knew all about old people and old houses. On that Halloween night her boyfriend lit the black flame candle. The Sanderson sisters came back from the dead. The Sanderson sisters returned from their grave to bewitch people. And they did.

The Tree (Song or Poem)

One day I saw a little tree.

It was very small,

but standing very tall.

with all those leaves.

If you see a tree standing tall

you will know that tree.

THE MOON DANCES AGAIN!

The sky serves as a stage As the moon comes waltzing in A star lit dress brightens the earth She dances a waltz and a tango Then she is joined by the sun He is wearing an outfit made of Bright yellow balls of fire He awakens the people on earth As they get ready for work And melts the moon away But later,

The sky serves as a stage once again And the stars waltz away As the moon dances again.

"But really really really cold!" The floor of 7B1 was wet and dirty. I hadn't actually meant to sit on the floor, but my tentative request for information had received a far more enthusiastic response than I had anticipated. As usual, with the deadline looming ever closer I had gone out in search of a

> The talk of the day in Grade Seven was undoubtedly their three day trip to Camp Arrowhan. In their excitement, everyone had crowded around, pushing to get closer to the page I was writing on, and finally forcing me to sit down to avoid being knocked right over.

"The second night was so cold," said Mariko Yamaguchi, "that seven of us squeezed together into three beds."

Kaitlyn LeFeaver counted the many activities on her fingers: "There was kayaking, sailing, a bonfire, canoeing, a ropes course, a theatre night . . . " "Each cabin group had to put together a skit," Ginny Aird explained, seeing that I looked confused, "The teachers did a really funny one, with dancing.' Jill Lewis described her close contact with the local wildlife. "In my backpack, in the cabin, there was an old lunch from the bus trip. So while we were out, wild animals came in and -" "It was just mice," interrupted one of the voices overhead. "It was not a mouse," Jill defended herself. "There's no way a mouse could have ripped a hole that big. I had to throw out my whole backpack, and it ate all my Hershey kisses." "I fell out of my kayak!" Kristen Cuthbert called happily down to me from her perch on a desk.

"My canoe tipped," admitted Zazi

Fischer-Harrison, "but it wasn't my fault. I'm a good canoeist. The canoes all had holes in them." "My canoe," bragged Carly Church, "had three inches of water in it." "Mine had four." "Ours had seven." "Ten" Numbers flew, each one trying to outdo the other. Ms. Walcott delivered the final verdict. "It was very effective in two areas. First of all, it provided a great opportunity for all eighty of the Grade Sevens to bond together.

And secondly it gave them a chance

also to begin recognizing leadership

Forest Life

国のこの国

Now, we are young, and our personalities have no stable colour or base. They are like a forest at the beginning of fall, the leaves half green, half gold. Then as we gradually grow older, our personalities will become more stable, like the forest in full fall, the different colours of leaves each in a bundle, like quilts made by our grandmothers. Only those grandmothers are us, making these quilts for our grandchildren. Soon all the leaves will have fallen, and the trees will be bare, but not dull. Some will take this harshly, feeling that life is over and there is no reason to live anymore. But let us enjoy our golden years, and watch eagerly for the next spring, and the next generation, when the leaves will come, replenished and ready to start the whole cycle again. — Laura Graham

Summer Nights

I sat in my room staring into the blue;

I had no clue what I was to do, For I could not get rid of my thoughts of you.

Those breezy summer days, and brisk summer nights, Holding your hand felt oh-soright,

As we ran through the nights, flying our kites.

— Hally Starr

Stars' Song I lie on the lawn at night, Watching the stars twinkling brightly.

Speckles of gold against a velvet sky.

A joy rings out from the stars; A joy they sing to everyone, Even those here on Earth. Mother says they sing for us to hear their song, For what they sing.

I am not sure.
Mother says it is for love and peace and harmony.
She says it is a melody sweet, pure and true.
She also says that we must love enough to hear.
I do not know that we will ever love enough to hear.
The stars' song.

Laughter

I tread home from our refuge in silence.

The sleet stings my unprotected skin.

Final words of hope and love.

Devotion to each other.

Painful rage surges within me.

Head pounding,

mechanical.

She didn't deserve it.

Her father was wrong!

Each uncaring slap resounded through my head.

Over and, over and, over . . . Stop! I cannot cry.

Tears pound behind my eyes,

but I cannot cry.

I want to scream, and beat her father as he beat her.

I walk in silence.

One less desk in the classroom,

Only eleven on the swim team now.

She will never return.

Her laughter is silenced forever.

JUST FOOLIN' AROUND

Is there a light side of life in grade seven? Surely the kids at Buccleuch are carefree, and jolly, making the most of the few years remaining before they hit HIGH SCHOOL, right? Well, they're not so sure. When I was asking for material for an article about working too hard, every grade seven in the hallway had something to contribute. Today I went back with a different headline.

''Just Foolin' Around"? But we Aronson and Emily Hanock don't really fool joking around in a hallway at around," Ashley Buccleuch. Math told me.

"Don't you do anything just for fun?" I asked.

"Well, said Sarah Sternberg pensively, "a lot of us go to the cafeteria at lunch."

"We tell jokes," said Ashley, looking serious.

C'mon, Guys. Smile, at least. Smiles make the world go round.

RADE EIGHT

So, what are the best and worst things about being in Grade 8? "People" "Friends" "Freedom" "Bigger Allowance" "Dances" . . .

Whoa, whoa, whoa. One at a time, guys. OK, how about you, Kristin McCormack.

"The best thing about being in Grade 8? Having Mrs. Young as a math teacher.

No, wait a second, you can have that in OAC.

too. Whoops."

Thank you, Kristin.

"Is it my turn, yet?"

Sure. What's your name?

"My name is Rachel Adams. The worst thing about Grade

8 is too much homework. The best thing? Hmm . . . The academic challenge? No, wait. Can I change that? The best thing in grade 8 is the freedom."

Sounds good. What about you, Laura Chiu?

"I don't know."

Surely there's something that you like at school this year.

"OK. The best is the friends." See, wasn't that easy? Didn't hurt a bit. Lesley Palmay, you're last.

"Since this is only my second vear at Branksome, the best thing has been getting to know some of the people who weren't in any of my classes last vear."

FANTASTIC. Thanks, Guys.

'EXTRA TERRESTRE DE HALLOWEEN

L'Halloween est très près, est-ce que vous êtes excité? Si vous êtes, vous faites une grande erreur. Parce que vous ne rencontrez pas l'extra terrestre de l'Halloween. II est insensé. féroce et désagréable. Les enfants ont très peur de lui parce qu' il est très laid. Il a la fourrure épaisse, en désordre et frisée, les yeux néon jaune, et brilliants comme des yeux d'un hibou et des tâches de rousseur brunes et vilaines. Tout est pour effrayer des personnes. Il réussit toujours! Il aime beaucoup manger les personnes; il

choisit particulièrement les enfants qui obéissent à leurs parents. Il remplit la bouche avec leur viande et leur sang. Quand il finit, il laisse leurs os sur la terre. Il > a une énorme bouche avec les dents vertes et pointues.

Il a un nez long et orange pour sentir les personnes. Ses ariffes et ses cornes sont pointues et longues pour faire mal et tuer. Il a un coeur noir obscure, plein de haine. Il ne sait pas qu'est-ce que c'est l'amour ou la gentillesse.

Chaque

Halloween, il

grossit et grandit deux mètres. Mais deux mois après l'Halloween, il maigrit parce qu'il seulement mange les personnes à l'Halloween. Une chose bizarre est quand il mange il rougit. Il est toujours furieux. Il est très fort aussi, il a beaucoup de muscles. II s'appelle Meurtrier Cruel, un nom parfait pour lui. Il est une bête de sangfroid. C'est un extra-terrestre venu de l'enfer. Quand Meurtrier Cruel meurt, son sang guérit toutes

For the Record

Branksome's a great school! The work is a lot harder than I was used to — it really keeps me on my toes — but the teachers are so nice. They really seem to care. I love the idea of sittings. Already I'm involved in many great new activities at Branksome: soccer, swimming . . . I feel like all of a sudden I'm part of a whole new family. — Branksome new girl, Kasia Vassos

/// ORKING HARD

Being in grade nine nis year is a different experience om in past years. This is no longr the big transition period from inior to senior school, from the est to the east. However, one hing remains the same. All of a udden, the teachers are assignig way MORE WORK! We interlewed grade nines about their rection to this new load. Here are

Sloan Brethour thinks "We do enough work during the day — we should have the evenings free" to cultivate other aspects of life. Emma Petch says homework isn't just cutting into her social time: "I have had so much homework some evenings that I haven't had time to eat dinner!" Olympia

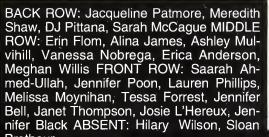

Berman can't even finish it all in the evenings: "I do five hours of homework a night, and one day of the weekend is taken up doing homework.'' Joyce Chau, on the other hand, says "It's OK." And Vanessa Nobrega suggests it would have been better if the teachers had eased the students into the routine a little slower. "We've had too much homework, too soon," she says.

The consensus is that the worst subjects for homework are English, French and Science. The least taxing are History and ≤ Latin. Miranda O'Reilly declares "We get NO Latin homework! Thanks, Mrs. Blake!"

Well, grade nine, we hope that by the time this goes to print you will have become accustomed to this year's routine. After all, all too soon you will find yourself in the senior school, with three ISPs, two OAC tests and five essays due in one week, and \ a you, along with the rest of us, will be able to look back on your days as a grade nine and sigh. These are your good old days.

AY BY DAY

A typical day in

Grade Nine?

The tone of my day is set at 11 p.m. the night before, so that is where this story will begin: 11:00 — I am just finishing my daily hour long flute practice. I get into bed and relax under my blankets, and then -- *#!&! I remember that I have to find my black Oxfords for tomorrow. I drag myself out of bed, stagger down the dim hallway, and commence my search. 12:00 — I collapse from exhaustion in the middle of my basement floor. Ms. Kenny's words drift through my sleepfogged brain: "Black, flat-soled shoes by tomorrow! Hmmm. I spot my mother's old black rainboots; they're black, flatsoled . . . I find the kitchen scissors and start cutting. 7:20 a.m. — My mother's face appears above the bed. "Oops," she says, "I forgot to 7:30 — I grab my bag, slip into my hacked off rainboots, and tear out of the house.

8:35 — I am making my way up the stairs when I am stopped in the hall by a well-meaning teacher who points out that I am wearing sawed-off rainboots on my feet. I smile tightly, nod, and try to escape. My head begins to hurt.

8:43 — I crash into my homeroom, late. My homeroom teacher scans my uniform. Today her eyes stop at my feet, and her eyebrows go up. I am > dragged off to Ms. Kenny's all-toofamiliar office. I contemplate telling my teacher she is an evil woman. My headache intensifies. 11:00 — As I drag myself into my history class, my teacher inquires if I am aware that I am wearing unregulation footwear. Am I aware?!. I take a deep breath, smile, and nod. She orders me to take off my shoes. As I sit down at my desk, I stub my toe. I think I need a Tylenol. 3:30 — School is finally over! In the locker room. I am bombarded by a solid mass of shrieking, giggling girls. I relish the idea of homicide. 4:00 — I fall through my front door and faint onto the couch. 10:30 — I wake up just in time to begin my flute practice.

HAT'S LIFE!

A few all-too familiar Branksome experiences from the eyes of grade nines.

Ah, the cafeteria! Food, drink, and (hopefully) good friends. How many times a week have I looked forward eagerly to the heavenly break for lunch when a wave of Branksome humanity thunders over the overpass, crushing all teachers, innocent bystanders and primary school kids foolish enough to get in the way? Especially now that all that great nutrition may be enjoyed "free," courtesy of that fantastic invention: the caf-card. — Cathy Leekam

Whew. The first class of the week is finally over . . . one less class until the weekend.

So off we go, chattering as we make our way down to the PAC. After the hymn, Mrs. Belash appears. We silently mouth the words with her: "May we have the staff announcements, please?" The announcements serve to give us the useful information that we are supposed to be at three different corners of the PAC for a few seconds. Then we pick up on the word "skit": this is the real reason we all come to assembly. We sit on the edge of our seats . . . well, OK, maybe we're not actually on seats, but . . . All too soon, Ms. Kenny tiptoes up to the microphone. She pleads for us to remain quiet while the faculty leaves. This is our cue to resume talking. We saunter off to our various corners, and then, late, to our next class. Only thirty-two hours and twenty five minutes of school until the weekend! -Cayleigh Warrack

SERVING OUR COMMUNITY

On October 3.

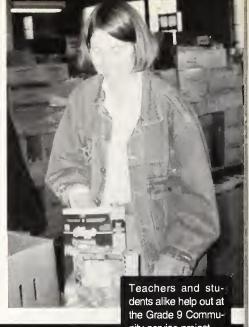

the grade nine students volunteered their services at the Daily Bread Food Bank. They were accompanied and assisted by a number of energetic staff members from both the teaching faculty and the guidance department.

Students arrived at the work site at 4:00 pm. Although there appeared to be a little confusion at the work site at first glance, we soon found ourselves up in the attic amidst crates, boxes, a great deal of dust and even a few token mice. Nevertheless, our brave grade nines threw themselves into the tasks at hand without hesitation. At record speed, tables were unloaded, setup and hundreds of cereal boxes were sorted. We even managed a respectable cleanup before our 6:00 pm departure.

The twohour Community Service excursion was a most productive outing. At a follow-up meeting, the grade nines unanimously indicated that this grade event should indeed be repeated next year — with or without boys.

It provided clear evidence of what a cohesive group our grade nines are, and it gave us an opportunity to help out the food bank during one of their busiest times: Thanksgiving, In fact, the girls did such a great job that they were invited back at their earliest convenience.

My name is Montana Burnett and I'm on the basketball team. I love it. Playing on the basketball team is a lot of fun in and of itself, but, it's especially good because we get out of school early for many of our games. The competition is very stimulating and we learn lots of important skills, like cooperation. We also learn to strive to do our best, to keep fit, and that the only way to improve is to practice. So far this year, we've won every single game except one.

The final tournament was VERY close, but we came in third. We could have come in second, but it was so close that they had to count points from the other games. We fell short by ONE point.

My name is Julia O'Hara. I'm in grade seven. I was on the junior soccer team last term. Our coach was Ms. Bincik. We had lots of practices, at 8:15 in the morning down on the lower field. When we got to school, it was still dark out. We practised our technique while the sun was rising!

We didn't win any games all year, but we tied some, and more importantly, we learned a lot. The most important thing I learned was how to work as a team. Most of us are definitely going to try out for the team again next year.

Interview with Miss Healey

- 1. How many years have you been at Branksome? 24
- 2. What do you find to be the most enjoyable aspect of Branksome? The people: there is a diverse group of interesting people.
- 3. Explain your most embarrassing moment. Don't ask me about that!
- 4. State the colour of your toothbrush. aqua
- 5. Explain your biggest accomplishment. Learning the computer (it's an ongoing one).
- 6. What is your favourite TV show or novel? "Mystery" on PBS.
- 7. What has been your happiest moment here at Branksome? My happiest moments have been watching students achieve success--in a performance, a game well played, a new skill learned or in an academic challenge.
- 8. What position do you hold in your family? ie: eldest, middle, youngest or only. Only
- 9. What is your favourite food served at the cafeteria? Pizza
- 10. Do you have any plans for the future? To spend time beside Lake Erie in any form.

11. Do you have any advice or words of wisdom you would like to share with the student body? Whatever you do, put your best into it. There's always something to learn and underneath the surface it is often very interesting.

(Possibly because we write the grad write-ups only 2 months into the year). I'm a B.S.S.er trapped in the body of a Branksome girl! In that case, I'd better tell my little monkeys at B.S.S. that I luv 'em and I miss 'em-since next year I'll be in university and they'll have to struggle through Gr.13 (the benefit of a fast-tracker). Hmmm... I'm probably the first Branksomite to mention B.S.S. in the yearbook. Well, it's been an experience! But I must say Ciao to the highschool years and hello to the good things to come! BRANKSOME GREEN

In between thunderstorms on May 10, 1995, over 150 volunteers dug, got muddy and wet, planted, mulched, dripped, ate, laughed and had a whole lot of fun at the annual Branksome Green Planting. Some slid about on the bank alongside Mt. Pleasant outside the Primary playground fence where cedars, sumacs, and other small trees were planted close to the bridge in the first stage of the naturalization of that bank. The hope is that these tree plantings will stabilize the bank and remove the need for mowing there.

Others planted in the area at the bottom of the stairs to the tennis courts, where some trees fell several winters ago. Here we are trying to crowd out the invasive exotic weeds, such as garlic mustard and Japanese knotweed, which would otherwise colonize a newly opened space like this, and from it, invade and take over the inferior woodlot.

The Ruth Hamilton Upjohn Wildflower garden behind the Kindergarten was extended right across the slope; this planting was intended both to recreate the atmosphere of the woodland garden that Mrs. Upjohn planted many years ago, and to extend the woodlot towards the top of the slope. Eventually there will be a path which small children can use to discover the secrets of the woodlot's edge, but until the trees provide shade, the flowers are all meadow varieties. Some planting was also done at the north side of the ReadAcre lawn, to reduce the danger of erosion there by extending the woodlot to the top of the slope.

Plant stock in this quantity costs a lot of money; funding was obtained from the Evergreen Foundation, CWIP, and donors within the school community. Some of the food for the bbq was donated by the Parents' Association, and the wonderful entertainment, including the dragon was provided by some Grade 6 students.

SPRING 1995

JAPANESE EXCHANGE

In May of last year (1995), twenty-two students visited Branksome from Seijoh Senior High School located just outside Nagoya in central Japan. Mr. Megami, the exchange co-ordinator, accompanied the students and spent a day and a half with the Branksome students. The students demonstrated the traditional Japanese tea service, Japanese dancing and shodo the Japanese calligraphy. This was the second visit for the students and teachers from Seijoh Senior High School.

It all began with a Grade 12 claim of superiority in assembly on May 3rd. The other grades quickly rose to the challenge. The grade challenge, out in the Quad, was met with a wide assortment of songs, cheers, and line-dancing (many thanks to GY).

Some highlights included: the Grade 10 monster in the locker room, a Grade 12 case of chicken pox sweeping the entire school, Grade 11

RANKSOME HALL DAY

Early on a cool glorious Saturday in September, dozens of people began to trickle into groups outside Branksome Hall. Why, you may ask, were dozens of people gathering at a school early on a Saturday morning? Saturday September 23, 1995 was Branksome Hall Day, now an annual tradition. The Slogan interviewed one of the chief organizers of the event, Tanya Pimenoff.

Slogan: What is Branksome Hall Day?

Ms. Pimenoff: BH Day is a fund raising, social event where alumnae, parents, staff, students and friends can enjoy time together as a whole community. Clan points are awarded for student participation.

Slogan: Describe some of the main attractions.

Ms. Pimenoff: I think two of our most successful endeavours were the Loony Dunk Tank, and the Beer Garden, both of which were new this year. Another highlight of the day was the opening of Above: Pam Arstikatis. Far Right: Claire Bennett. Below: The face-painting booth.

Alumnae Centre and Archives.

Slogan: How many volunteers were involved in organizing this project?

Ms. Pimenoff: The closest estimate we have is that 600-800 people gave of their time to help out, and we're very grateful to them.

Slogan: What image stands out in your mind of the day?

Ms. Pimenoff: One of the best images was the one that greeted everyone as they arrived at the registration on the speed bumps: the smells of coffee and popcorn, the squeals and splashes from the near-by dunk tank, and most importantly the look on people's faces as they were reunited with old friends or made new ones.

Slogan: What was your biggest worry during the planning stages?

Ms. Pimenoff: I think really the only serious worry we all had was about the weather. The event could not have been the same in the rain.

Well, Ms. Pimenoff, you needn't have worried. The weather was clear, and the sun shone all day long on Branksome Hall Day '95.

he first day of the Chicago trip turned out to be quite exciting! I arrived at Branksome extra early on the morning of October 17 in order to board the bus to Chicago, which left at 5:20 a.m.! Eleven hours later, I was checking into my room at the Inn of Chicago - right on the Magnificent Mile. After a brief "settling in", all 38 of us trekked over to the Art Institute of Chicago for the show we'd come to see -- the MONET exhibit. Wow! 185 paintings collected from all over the world were there for us to experience. Luckily, we had the opportunity to return to the show another day to spend more time revelling in the beauty of these paintings.

The next three days were filled with cultural experiences — Chicago style. We visited the Museum of Contemporary Art and the Terra Museum. We drove to Oak Park where we toured Frank Lloyd Wright's home, studio and nearby Wright-designed buildings. We walked the Windy City's Loop for 2 hours with an expert on Chicago's architecture.

Being teenaged girls, we also managed to do our fair share of shopping and eating. The Planet Hollywood, Andy's Pizza and Jazz Club and the Navy Pier's big ferris wheel were some highlights.

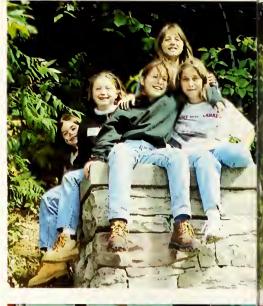

On Friday evening, we sadly descended the 343 metre high John Hancock Tower and, exhausted but exhilarated, boarded the bus for the long trip home.

With the death of Nora McRae on January 12th, Branksome lost a reat friend and former teacher, a eacher of Latin as well as of Engsh, who had been an integral part f the school community for over wenty-five years. Many senior stulents and most Staff members renember Mrs. McRae personally, and hers was a great influence upon the lives she touched. Mrs. AcRae was a member of the Brankome English Department from 968 until 1993, and she was one if its most learned and scholarly eachers. She had an enormous repect for the correct use of the Engsh language — written and spoken and was, in this regard, demandg of her students and colleagues like. Her high standards earned er the respect of generations of tudents. No one was more in dehand at gatherings of alumnae or y former students visiting the chool.

Mrs. McRae introduced her students, and her colleagues, to a tremendous variety of literature, the classics and the best of contemporary material. A dedicated traveller and a woman of great culture, she often encouraged her students to share her enthusiasm for the arts as supporting the study of literature. All of her pursuits were approached with energy and zest. Very typically, Mrs. McRae was a great walker!

Beyond her academic influence, Mrs. McRae had many endearing personal qualities. She was always a generous hostess, an interesting companion - anywhere and everywhere and appealed to people of all ages.

For years, Mrs. McRae played an enormous part in debating at Branksome and within the community of debaters and coaches at the other schools. Her contribution was recognized by the establishment of an annual public speaking and debating competition named in her honor.

She was, above all, a real presence — in the school and in the lives of everyone who knew her. Those who've known Nora McRae, and loved her, will miss her terribly. But there may be comfort in a few lines from Timothy Findley's The Wars, a novel she taught in the years just before the retired: The novel's epigraph assures the reader "never that which is shall die." (Euripides) Later in the book, a soldier fighting in France writes to his young daughter in Canada:

"Make your prayers against despair. I am alive in everything I touch. Touch these pages and you have me in your fingertips. We survive in one another."

THE FATHER DAUGHTER

Oh, it's that time again. So, bust out that Zum Zum from Grade Six graduation and your slippers. Yes, it is time for the Father Daughter, the night to dance until your daddy drops. Daddykins has been preparing for this day since the end of last year's dance, so get ready to party...

Once I fought my way through the Ashley Crippen Line-up, I was able to enter the smoky gym (fog machine in full effect). Watch out! I almost got hit by the flailing arm of a daddy attempting to dance. But once the disco dancing contest had begun, I knew that THIS was where I was meant to be.

Arts Prefect - Taylor Wood

his year at Branksome Hall was very exciting and full for all the Arts programs. In the fall many people were hard at work in order to prepare for the first ever student run production of the musical Annie. Annie was one of the most successful shows ever at Branksome, and therefore raised a lot of money for the P.A.C. The fall also initiated the many clubs at Branksome. These clubs include the choirs, the many instrumental ensemble, and dramatic clubs. Many art students returned to Chicago on a much anticipated trip to the special Monet exhibit. Holiday Season was wrapped up with the traditional Carol Service. The New Year was opened with a new dramatic production of "The Importance of Being Earnest". January was also busy for both the Choir who was preparing for The Kiwanis Festival and the Chamber Choir who was preparing for the CBC Choral Competition. Spring was introduced with the completion of "The Importance of Being Earnest". Spring was concluded with the music trip to Washington in April and the successful Spring Concert. Thanks for a creative year Branksome! Thank you to the Arts Council and the artistically involved people for a great and overwhelming year. Good luck and thanks again!

were sure to be heard at every rehearsal, we pulled off performances with style and spontaneity. Thanks for a great year!

his year was a great success for symphony; we all worked hard in order to prepare for our numerous concerts as the Remembrance Day ceremony, Christmas and Spring concerts, and our exciting Washington trip. Another highlight was Mrs. Reynold's singing along.

Thanks for a great year, early practices were a blast and you were always on time for every practice with a smile on your face. Have a wicked summer!

The Stage Band

Mr. Gerow falls asleep on his job!

f nothing else, Stageband is the most UNIQUE band in the school. Where else would you find a conductor who walks around saying, "Do-ba-do-ba-do", a trombone section made up of baritone and French horn players, and a pair of drummers that only understand instructions such as "Dang, dand da dang" and " . . . sst, . . . sst"? After wracking my brain, the best word I can use to describe this happening ensemble is VERSATILE. We've played a lot of different types of music this year. from rock ("The Twist"), to blues (of the "Tin Roof" variety) to making "A Whole New World" with a Beauty and a Beast. In all seriousness, however, Stageband is having an excellent year; we played at the reception at the Father-Daughter (where we were a huge hit, naturally), and we have done a whole variety of other exciting things. Although the band is small (having only 13 members), on Tuesdays and Fridays the bandroom is sure to be filled with an enthusiasm fit for fifty. We've got rhythm, and a bunch of girls who have proven to be the Boss of the Blues, the Rhythm in Rock, and the Sultans of Swing. Thanks for a terrific year you merry gentle dudes, and don't forget — we're letting it snow, not making it snow!

oncert Band has had an incredible year! We've had a lot really in rehearsals, breakfasts and friendly sectional discussions, and we went on the Music Trip for the very first time (what an experience!). Thank you to all members for such a good year.

The Top Five Reasons to Come to Concert Band:

(By All Concert Band Members)

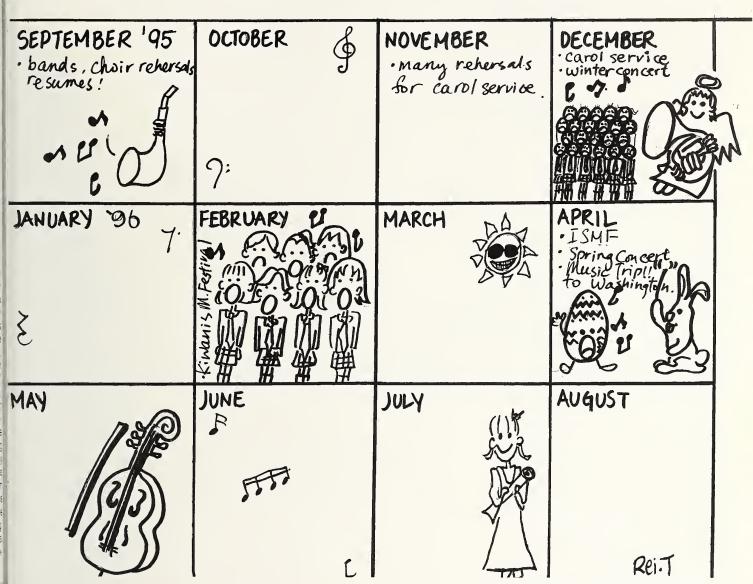

- 5) We have trumpets (better late than never).
- 4) We get to watch the concert band present eat oatmeal.
- 3) It's an excellent opportunity to hear Mr. Gerow sing.
- 2) A great place to meet new people . . . every week
- 1) We get to play "Sleepers Wake" at 7:30 a.m.!!

The Fire

As water flows so to love Gliding softly as a dove, Endlessly around the earth From vale to sea in all its mirth.

Amongst all creatures grand and small In all its glory it does crawl, And though it may cause much pain One searches for't o'er again.

Life and love go hand in hand Together wearing the marriage band, Etemally shall it remain Causing joy and grief and pain.

And while today love strives in lust Tomorrow shall it turn to dust, And ever still the heart does yearn As yet the fires of love do burn.

Erica Healy Grade 11

I HATE YOU!

Don't come near me! I hate you! You took my heart and made it two. You're nothing but a sneaky Pete, a liar, schemer and a dirty cheat!

Aaaah I recall one lovely day, In the floral-scented month of May. You took me to a bog somewhere, or was it a quagmire? Oh I don't care!

You said you would profess your love, Holler it to the skies above.

You opened your mouth and out it came, Some other Suzy-girl's name!

So maybe now you all will see, Why nature's not my cup of tea. You dumped me under skies so blue, Don't come near me! I hate you!

Garden of Eden

God didn't realize Nor did Adam or Eve that outside the Garden was reality.

There was dirt.
There is dirt,
outside the Garden of Eden —
It's real life.

The only bit of reality was the snake. He was sin. Sin is real, and I'm a sadist.

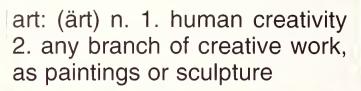

Do we go to the garden when we're done?
Is it something to really hope for?

Am I reality?
Am I the way out?
Am I lost in the garden?
or standing before it?

I don't want to die if there actually is religion . . .

My visit to Chicago has made a great impact on my opinion of Monet. I have gained a great respect for this artist. At first, my impressions on the "Monet Show" was very casual and I assumed that it was just like any other exhibit, but after seeing his works in chronological order, I was able to see just how Monet developed his style, and it was just truly amazing; definitely beyond the description of words.

In addition, it became evident that all the artists after Monet had been influenced by this great impressionist. Artists have directly and indirectly incorporated Monet's style into their own.

My ambition was to demonstrate my feelings towards Monet through contemporary art. The forks on the frame of the mirror symbolize the hands of a new generation of artists who are able to continue using Monet's style. The cutlery was generously donated by the art students in Branksome, and now they are all unified in this piece. The mirror was chosen as the canvas to demonstrate Monet's bravery in color; therefore, your hair, skin color and clothes will represent the spontaneous colors as it is reflected on the mirror. The mirror also intimately connects the audience to the art piece.

Once upon a time there was a little boy by the name of Johnny S. When he was only in grade eleven he came to the brilliant conclusion that he could save a whole bunch of money by not going to school anymore. So poor little Johnny S. wasted his days away playing educational video games; his favorite was 'Utopia' where he found great pleasure in taking funding away from the societies essential services. Johnny S. of course used the knowledge he gained through his many years of schooling to back up these decisions.

After a stimulating evening at the local pub Johnny S. returned home to play his video games. He made the astounding observation that all these people were wasting money on their education, so he cut the Public School Boards funding by one billion dollars.

As Johnny S. went to sleep that night he thought of how jealous everybody must be of him because he was well liked by every one who had ever met him and he was extremely successful. He was after all elected to the provincial parliament and then was appointed as the minister of education to become a member of the cabinet. Only a person of great knowledge and reason is honored with such a title. Being a nice guy he decided that he would do everybody a favor and abolish not only OAC but also grade twelve. This of course would give the generous members of provincial government more money and little Johnny S. would be considered a high school graduate at last.

JUST DO IT

Nike said it, Branksome did it, We won, we lost and we tied, But through sweat, rain, tears, sun and pain, Most importantly, we tried.

95/96 has come and gone, 10 months of athletic thrill, There were clubs, games and challenging

We conquered with strength and will.

We hit the hardest, Rowed the longest, Ran the fastest, And threw the farthest.

Well, sometimes we didn't,

We weren't always the best, But that's O,K. cause we cheered with such zest!

The friends we made, The bonds that grew strong, And our coaches without whom We would not last so long.

Sport's not all muscles, It's not skills, or big scores, It is what you've got going In that good head of yours.

Sometimes it's hard But the mental game can be fun, We hit homers, swam "fly" And look back once it's done.

We can think — what a year, We did lots in that time, We excelled, sometimes bombed, But that's O,K., keep in mind.

Thank you to all, To the coaches and fans, To the girls who took part, Or who lent a great hand.

A great year I think We've done it this far, Don't ever give up, And keep playing hard.

Good luck next year! Love, Angie

Thank You so much to all the tour guides who gave up their spares so willingly to show prospective families around the school this year. It is not the buildings, nor the number of teams and clubs that make people want to come to Branksome, but you, the students, who give the school its personality. I appreciate the help that every single one of you has offered me this year — you have made my job so easy. Thank you, Mrs. Firth, for our little chats and for letting me live in your office, and Mrs. Weinstock you have made being part of the "admissions team" a true privilege.

Responsibility: Community Service

This year has been an exciting one for community service at Branksome. The support and enthusiasm for Branksome's first year with a mandatory community service program has been tremendous. Not only have participants in special events soared but the number of students involved in regular weekly volunteer positions has sky-rocketed as well. In September, Branksome had more participants in the Annual Terry Fox run than any other independent school in Toronto, with Branksome alone raising over ten thousand dollars. The support for such campaigns as The Red Ribbon Campaign has been unprecedented with over fifty Branksomites participating to raise money for AIDS research in Canada. Drives during the holiday season collected used clothing for the Bayview Hospice Resale shop and the Grade eight gift drive gathered gifts for four different charities in the city. Although the response to and attitude towards community service has been excellent at Branksome, the community service executive with their ideas and enthusiasm helped Branksome get even more involved. Thanks Branksome for a tremendous year of community service!

Look Who's Talking

"Phone rings in the middle of the night and your father says whatcha gonna do with your life. Oh Daddy dear you know you're still number one but girls, they want to have fun oh yah girls just want to have fun." Cindy Lauper was completely right when she wrote this song. I especially think it was directed towards all the Branksome ladies. As usual the BH social scene has been out of control. Our dances have been in great demand and the only people we can thank for that is ourselves! Our spirit and talent for dancing is what makes us popular. So I hope everyone had a great time at dances and all the other social events because I know I did. One more thing for all the BH Ladies. You think about Branksome, all the things you have done, The laughter, the friends, the work, and the fun. For these things make Branksome a wonderful place, And next year new students will remember your face. They'll say "There's my tour guide, she showed me the school, I remember the first time I looked in at that pool.' Listen up all you students, give all that you've got -Take a look at your school, it really offers a lot. You get back what you give — if you remember that rule, Then you're sure to make the most of your time here at school. Thanks again to the tour guides, you have helped me a ton. This year, Kilt Press has been AWE-SOME, thanks to a dedicated Kilt Press Staff, great contributions, and, of course, YOU, all of our readers! Despite major computer breakdowns, blown fuses, and finicky photocopiers, the KILT PRESS has al-

Women's issues seems to have become known, and unjustly so, as a radical feminist group. This year we took it upon ourselves to change Branksome's views. We emphasized the fact that women's issues are for everyone who believes in equal opportunities for men and women and for everyone who is interested in exploring the issues which affect young women today. We have had active group discussions on controversial topics such as eating disorders, the Vienna Tribunal, teenage pregnancy and STD's. We also enjoyed watching videos, and listening to several speakers. This was a great year for Women's Issues. Thanks to everyone for their support.

than ever before. With the 50th anniversary of the United Nations, we began the year with a commemoration of the UN. This included a speaker, a school-wide quiz and the "chip in for UNICEF" chocolate chip cookie bakesale, which, by selling hundreds of cookies, raised money for needy children around the world. Later in the year came the World Affairs Conference at UCC. This was organized by a record number of Branksomites. Discussing the topic of "Morality at the Millennium", the conference proved to be just as controversial as it's theme promised.

And although our participation at SOMA was met with a few glitches this year, we certainly hope that all the same delegates will part next year.

In the end, Public Affairs must give special thanks to our executive committee which included Nikki Reindorf, Mariya Sharif and Louise Skidmore, and of course to our conscientious and caring staff advisor, Mrs. Marshall. The Public Affairs Group has had some great experiences this year and we know that we will have many more in the next. Joanne Sitarski

Day after WAC, delegates continue to discuss issues.

It's been another busy and successful year, thanks to the support both from our members and the senior school as a whole. Not only has Public Affairs taken part in our usual activities, but we've tried new endeavors as well. With everything from mini-news reports in assembly to after school speakers to fund raising for UNICEF, public affairs has branched off into more areas

Head: Kimberly Brooker

The Multi-cultural Affairs Society is a group that meets together every other week to discuss multi-cultural issues affecting Branksome Hall and the outside community. The group was formed in order to create a diversified program that would honour all of the many cultures that Branksome shares. This year Branksome hosted a Multicultural Event, at the end of April, with three other independent Schools. The Event linked many different customs, traditions and faiths in a fun-filled day of costumes, foods and stories. We hope that in future, the awareness of different cultures will contin-

The Duke of Edinburgh program is designed to give students the opportunity to gain valuable experiences through outdoor expeditions, community service and leadership programs. The challenge of these programs stimulate and encourage self-reliance and discipline, perserverance and determination, initiative and creativity, community responsibility and fitness of the body and mind.

Branksome Students on an expedition.

The Duke of Ed program is great for any type of student. It is a way to meet new people and expand your horizons to do things you may have never thought of doing.

Peer Math Tutors

You have probably seen them around, a group of graduating year girls hanging around the math classrooms and clinics. These students have willingly given up many hours to help their fellow students with mathematics. This club is open to any graduating year student enrolled in an OAC math course. If you enjoy mathematics and working with others you might want to consider joining this club in the next school year.

Student Council

Student Council is a form of student government at Branksome and consists of all the heads of clubs and societies, and class presidents. The student council meets every alternate Wednesday, and its goal is to ensure that the student voice is heard throughout the school. In our meetings we discuss all current issues affecting the student body and the BH community. Many of the topics discussed during meetings stem from suggestions or questions left in the suggestion box in the student Often rowdy and always interesting, student council meetings are controversial, sometimes heated and never quiet. There is always an opinion to express, a story to tell, or a question to ponder.

Community Service

This is a most exciting year for our Community Service program. While volunteer work and charitable donations have historically been a part of the Branksome spirit, never have we had such active and widespread participation from our student body in service work.

Most importantly, all students in both the Middle and Senior

Schools are involved in our Community Service program.

The Grade 7's, 8's and 9's participate in a grade event.

Grade 10 students through to Graduating year perform a minimum of five hours of service work per year. Students are organized to participate in events which Branksome has always supported as well as

such as the Red Ribbon Campaign and the Salvation Army Blitz organized through Opheleo, attendance at special volunteer events is at an all-time high. Everyone involved from staff to students is responsible for this success and special mention must go to our Community Service Prefect, Sarah Wilson.

Last year's Community Service Profect, Susan Mac-Dougall, was keen to promote a mandatory Community Service program. We worked together with both student and staff executives to create our program as it is today. Susan has now graduated. However, her contributions to Community Service remain with us. While Branksome has supported this Community Service program and there has been much positive feedback, we will continue to evaluate it on an ongoing basis so that it may be a constant reflection of who we are and who we would like to be.

Thank You for an outstanding year of Community Service.

Community Service Coordinator.

Jessica Hilltout on Halloween

Jessica Hilltout '95, volunteered at an orphanage in Bogota, Columbia this fall for four months. Last spring, she spoke to me about wanting to take some time off before starting university to perform some type of service work in South America with underprivileged children.

Jessica finished her placement at La Casa de la Madre y el Nino in December. She wrote to me (in Spanish, por supuesto) about how difficult it was going to be to leave the children and that she wanted to adopt them all. The next I heard, her placement had ended and she could not believe how quickly the four months had passed.

Many years ago, Jessica's family adopted a baby girl from the very same orphanage. Indeed, this community service placement had special meaning for Jessica. Last year when we discussed a placement in South America, it sounded very exciting. Jessica acted on her philanthropic desire, and that good intention became a reality.

Felicitaciones to you Jessica for making a difference and congratulations to each and every one of you who gives of your time for the betterment of any community anywhere!

Where is everyone going . . .
